

"CHICK" TUCKER HIT BY BULLET OF A MADMAN

Prize Fighter Wounded,
While Italian Fought
Eleven Policemen.

"Chick" Tucker, the west side fighter, whose prize ring sobriquet concealed the fact that he is Carlo Cerrano, is lying critically wounded to-day in St. Vincent's Hospital, the result of being struck by one of ten pistol shots fired by a drink-infiltrated man of his own race. His crazy assailant is in Bellevue, with two bullets in his right leg, the work of policemen who sought to check the career of the hot-blooded Italian by sending a score of bullets after him as he fled, firing and yelling, through Sullivan street, early to-day.

The madman is Gaetano De Giorgio, of No. 109 Sullivan street, and he is a giant in size. He was full of "extraordinary," and worse, when he wheeled into Sullivan street. A man passing with a basket was at once made a target by the drunken Italian, who pulled two revolvers and let fly. The man dropped his basket and fled. The man dropped his basket and fled.

Eleven in Pistol Fight.

Policeman Edwin Simmers, hearing the shots, ran up with drawn club, and the Italian fired point blank. De Giorgio then fired again through Sullivan street, firing as he went, and creating a panic in the neighborhood. Other policemen joined in the pursuit, and eight men were shot, and three detected were in the chase. Each man took a shot or two at the fugitive.

"Chick" Tucker, in his saloon, at No. 109 Sullivan street, and dashed out upon the sidewalk in time to receive a bullet from the revolver of the Italian. The bullet struck him in the mouth and lodged in his neck. He fell to the court, and was hurried to the hospital in a critical condition.

The wild Italian, realizing another bullet had dropped to the pavement with two bullets in his right leg, had gone in the mean time when a dozen through the neighborhood that a dozen more had been killed, and three amazons were shortly on the scene. De Giorgio was removed to Bellevue, a prisoner. He is a placid, well-researched, quiet work to whom we agree. He is the "win ordinary" made him crazy.

Policeman Kelly, of the Market Street Station, was struck, had a narrow escape. He was aiming a blow with his revolver when the Italian turned and fired, the bullet cutting a furrow in the descending dull edge.

A policeman stood around the prisoner, shouting "Lynch him," and the presence of the policemen alone saved the Italian.

MORTALLY HURT BY HIS NEW REVOLVER

Hoffman Dislodges Weapon from Chair Seat, and It Is Discharged.

Paul Hoffman, a mechanic, living at No. 63, East One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, bought a big revolver and holstered it ten days ago, when burglars began to invade the Bronx and raid houses in every direction.

He kept the revolver concealed in his leather belt, on a chair alongside his tools. Last night, while preparing to retire, Hoffman placed the weapon in its accustomed position and turning out the electric light, he heard a loud scuffle against the chair and the revolver, falling, exploded in its sheath, the bullet passing through the leather cover and lodging in Hoffman's left side. He was removed to the J. H. Hood Wright Hospital in a critical condition.
